

Brooklyn, NY Author Publishes African-American Sports Biography

This Book is a Biography of the First African-American Billiards Player to Win World and U.S. National Titles

Big City Nights: The Biography of the Legendary Cisero Murphy, a new book by Tyriek A. Murphy, has been released by Dorrance Publishing Co., Inc.

This book you are about to embark upon contains a detailed depiction of a dramatically dynamic individual – whose family ancestry dates back to the late nineteenth century – determined to diversify a sports area dedicated and dominated by Caucasians during the mid-twentieth century. This essential gentleman has repeatedly set records that are still intact today, in the twenty-first century. Whether locally, nationally, or internationally, this man displayed the utmost professionalism during times of devastation derived from racial discrimination. Despite the dangerous deviations, he dissected his way through in life; he always found the directional path to overcome the odds. His breakthrough ultimately paved the way for other diverse players and, essentially, women to partake in the pastime. As a result, and considered by many to be the “Jackie Robinson” of the billiards world, this iconic figure holds the record for being the only Black American world title winner and Hall of Fame inductee in professional billiards history. About the Author

Naturally, to be as versatile as he has been in life, it took a strong village to mold Tyriek A. Murphy’s persona. Having dedicated family and family friends raise him and ensure that every step forward was of a solid foundation made certain his very successful existence. This essential facet of community child mentoring is the one traditional component Murphy utilized in the proper and positive adolescent development of his own two children, Tychelle and Tyler.

Through life’s progression, Murphy has acquired spectacular academic and professional accomplishments. He obtained his graduate degree from Alfred University and his undergraduate degree from The College of New Rochelle. Professionally, he has fifteen years of customer relations; six years of loss prevention, transportation, and security; and five years of management operations. He has knowledge of human services, medical support services, and has been specially trained in law enforcement. As the sole owner and chief executive officer of Murphy Enterprise Solutions (MES), it is with great honor that he humbly leads his organization in the deliverance of luxurious benefits to modern civilization. One of those assets is this literary piece regarding his grandfather, Cisero Murphy.
